Clear Skies

The Transportation Security Administration's carry-on rules (liquids or gels must be three ounces or fewer and fit in a one-quart plastic bag) have introduced a new element to the check-in process: nail-biting paranoia that your favorite conditioner will be confiscated. Thankfully, 311 Travel Bag has come to the rescue with its Clear Bag System, a quart-sized translucent tote filled with five reusable containers, each one showing the ounces it's holding (all under the limit). The bag's practical approach has earned it the TSA stamp of approval, which means your conditioner—as well as your sanity—will be saved en route.
